ENHANCING STUDENT ENGAGEMENT IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION THROUGH CREATIVE SPACE AT SEGUINON NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL

[Philrootcrops Training Hall, Visayas State University]

This research study assess how Creative Space influences student engagement in Physical Education class's specifically uninteresting topic that boredom students. It aims to determine the significant level of creative space to student's level of engagement. The respondents are the students from grade nine section Mabolo of Seguinon National High School.

The action research utilized an explanatory research design, involving quantitative and qualitative research. Using Pre and Post-test survey and measuring the significance by paired T-test. Subsequent implemented traditional seating arrangement discussion before Pre-test survey and then Post-test survey after the implementation of the intervention (Creative Space "Theater"). A Thematic Analysis by Braun & Clarke's (2013) six-phase framework was also used as supporting evidence of experiences of the quantitative data. Where in, it follows the process by first (1) Becoming familiar with the data, (2) Generate initial codes, (3) Search for themes, (4) Review themes, (5) Define themes, (6) Write up. Result shows that creative space provides sufficient evidence to conclude that there is a significant impact towards student's engagement before and after its implementation. Researches have also identified supporting evidence through experiences to prove that there is an increase student engagement. Specifically, it affects students Participation, Students Communication, Students Emotion, Students Behavior, and Students Creative Thinking. This study concludes that creative space has a significant impact to student's engagement in the classroom that enhance their ability to engage and with stand against boredom topics in physical education
