Dear Dr. Yepes,

I would like to formally express my interest in the full-time faculty position in the Department of Physiology at the College of Medicine of the university. With my relevant teaching background, I am confident in my ability to contribute meaningfully to your institution's commitment to excellence in medical education.

I am a Doctor of Medicine with specialty training in Internal Medicine, and I have completed the coursework for my Master's degree in Internal Medicine (Major in Diabetology). I have been involved in teaching core physiology topics to undergraduate medical students, both from the Cebu Institute of Medicine and University of Cebu School of Medicine for six years. I was a part of the pioneer full-time faculty of the University of Cebu School of Medicine, where I also became the Section Head of Physical Diagnosis, Department of Medicine in Year Level 2.

In addition to classroom instruction, I have also participated in curriculum development, student mentoring and research advisement, and faculty development programs. I am eager to contribute to the academic, clinical, and research mission of the college. I believe that my medical school, clinical residency training, and teaching experience have molded me into a well-rounded person: an eager perpetual learner, a compassionate physician and mentor, an enthusiastic worker, and a team player.

Attached are my curriculum vitae, transcript of records, and other relevant documents for your review. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background and passion for the medical education align with your goals for the college of medicine. I am excited and looking forward to join the distinguished team of faculty in your institution.

Sincerely yours,

Karina Pulido-Lapinid, M.D.
