Dear Ma'am Batistel,

Greetings! I hope you are doing well upon receiving this letter.

Upon learning about the Instructor job opening in the Department of Biological Sciences of Visayas State University, I was eager to contact you with high interest. When reviewing the job description, I was excited to see how well my education background and experiences align with the position requirements. I feel that your core mission of producing quality education, top performing professionals suit what I offer as a graduate of BS Biology and a MS Wildlife Science-candidate in the University of the Philippines Los Baños.

Through my experiences as field and research assistant in several conservation-related projects in Leyte and a Safety officer-Wildlife in Cebu Pacific, I was able to hone my knowledge and skills in biodiversity, field surveys and wildlife management, as well as in communicative collaboration and Philippine conservation. Furthermore, I believe that as a young wildlife biologist myself I will be able to share valuable knowledge and insights on the vital concepts of Zoology and impart additional wisdom unto the next generation of biologists on how to develop and strengthen one's capabilities in critical thinking, effective communication, and adaptability.

In addition, I personally see this job opportunity as a work of law of attraction because I have always wanted to be a part of the VSU community and contribute to wildlife research and conservation in Eastern Visayas. Thus, I am humbly looking forward to hearing from you to discuss how my qualifications will prove valuable in the position at your most convenient time.

If there is anything else needed on my end, please let me know through my contact details below. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Respectfully yours,

Chenalin C. De Los Santos
