TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is to formally certify that Ms. Serica Joy C. Dadios has been a regular field-based staff of the Environmental Leadership and Training Initiative (ELTI), a Program of the Yale School of the Environment since March 2020 and ended last July 2023.

Joy started working with ELTI in 2020, right as the COVID-19 pandemic began. She was forced to spend the first several months living in the office because of the closure of the university and strict travel restrictions. She plays multiple roles, including serving as the main course facilitator, ensuring that all logistics are prepared, providing formal lectures, introducing participants to some of the research on native species that is currently underway at the Visayas State University (VSU), and helping facilitate some of the hands-on activities. In her interactions with course participants and other members of the ELTI team, she always comes across as very confident, knowledgeable about the subject matter, and committed to the cause. While continuing to work on promoting Rainforestation through training and leadership program activities, Joy also had to contend with significant administrative challenges in the Philippines program through the Visca Foundation for Agricultural and Rural Development, Inc. (ViFARD).

While these have not been easy times, Joy successfully pushed through with six courses, including the innovative School-on-the-Air program, and the development of several new Rainforestation sites, including two that we use in our courses.

Please feel free to call me directly at eva.garen@yale.edu should you have questions or would like further clarifications.

Sincerely,

Dr. Eva Garen
