Dear Ms. Rola and Ms. Gabunada,

Good day!

I am writing to formally apply for the position of Assistant Professor IV in the Department of Arts, Languages, and Literature at Visayas State University, Baybay Campus. I am currently completing the final stage of my Ph.D. in Educational Science at Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest, Hungary, having fulfilled all academic requirements and preparing for my dissertation defense, which I expect to complete in the coming months.

With a strong background in education and teaching experience that spans diverse subjects, including research, teacher education, and science education, I am eager to contribute to your department's mission of cultivating excellence in the arts, languages, and literature. My academic training has honed my ability to design and deliver student-centered instruction that fosters critical thinking, cultural awareness, and effective communication, skills that are essential in the fields your department champions.

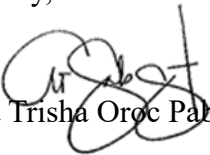

My research, which focuses on student engagement among international doctoral students, aligns with the department's commitment to nurturing reflective practitioners who are equipped to navigate and contribute to diverse and dynamic learning environments. Moreover, my participation in international conferences and pedagogical trainings has enriched my understanding of intercultural perspectives and innovative teaching methodologies, which I am enthusiastic to bring into classroom and collaborative settings at VSU.

I am confident that my multidisciplinary background, research orientation, and dedication to educational excellence will allow me to make meaningful contributions to your department. I look forward to the opportunity to support faculty and student development through effective teaching, curriculum innovation, and scholarly collaboration.

Please find my curriculum vitae attached for your consideration. I would welcome the chance to discuss how my experiences and skills align with your department's goals.

Thank you very much for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of contributing to Visayas State University's continued success.

Sincerely,

Anisa Trisha Oroc Pabingwit
