

MARIA VANESSA E. GABUNADA

Department Head

Department of Arts Language and Literature

Visayas State University

Visca, Baybay City, Leyte

Madam:

Have a great day, Madame!

It is with great joy and honor that I am now looking for a teaching position in the Department of Arts, Language, and Literature. I am both proud and apprehensive to apply for a teaching position in your department.

My name is Gilly Mae S. Escasinas, and I am a Bachelor of Secondary Education specializing in Filipino. I realize I'm a long way from meeting the education requirement of a relevant Master's degree in English, but I'm convinced that my university teachers have taught me so much about how to be an effective and productive teacher. I already passed the Licensure Examination for Teachers and have my license. This is the only thing I've been waiting for to pursue my teaching plans: my license and a chance. I may not have teaching-related professional experience, but my student experiences have surely prepared me to confront the realities of teaching, and despite the fact that it was a long time ago, I still long for it.

I understand that dealing with college students nowadays is difficult; they are incredibly diverse on a variety of issues that must be handled with caution due to their emotional states. But rest assured, I have faced such challenging conditions during the epidemic, when learning is exclusively done online and I am required to work as a private tutor for five students. I've worked with various levels of retention and their characteristics for over three years before deciding to attend Visayas State University while working as an Admin Aide. I believed that my teaching abilities, together with my work ethics, capabilities, and strong desire to facilitate learning, would substantially benefit both me and the university. I can also promise you that I welcome any assistance, recommendations, or criticism to help me better in my teaching.

I am looking forward to discussing with you the various ways in which I may make a meaningful contribution to our department, school, country, and students' lives. Thank you in advance for your time and consideration on this subject.

Respectfully,

Gilly Mae S. Escasinas
