R E: Re-Echo Training for the GE Courses

The Office of the Vice President for Instruction (OVPI) in coordination with the Office of the Director of Administration and Human Resource Development (ODAHRD) and Department of Liberal Arts and Behavioral Sciences (DLABS) will hold a series of re-echo training on the teaching of new general education (GE) courses to faculty members handling GE courses on the following dates below:

March 1-3	Understanding the Self and Art Appreciation
March 8-10	Ethics and Contemporary World
March 22-24	Science Technology
April 5-7	History and Purposive Communication
April 12-14	Rizal and Math

Participants for each course from each campus is limited to a maximum of three only. The recommended participants should download the materials that will be sent to their email address, print them and bring the materials during the re-echo training. Each participant is expected to bring a laptop.

Since the organizer is not collecting any registration fee for the re-echo training, only snacks (am/pm) for the whole duration shall be provided.

For your guidance.
