MEMORANDUM NO. 360

Series of 2020

T O: Chancellors of Component Colleges

R E: Reframing of the Delivery of VSU's Core Programs in line with the New Normal

The biggest impact of COVID-19 in academic institutions appears to be the uncertainties, threats, and challenges on how to deliver quality higher education to our students while ensuring their safety and well-being. Nonetheless, VSU as a leading University needs to find proactive ways and strategies so that VSU's core programs and services in instruction, research, extension, innovation, and production continue to be relevant.

In this time of pandemic and the challenges of the new normal, we need to enforce systematic preparedness. Mindset preparation, coping, and planning are a few of the strategies needed to rise above these challenges. Now more than ever is the time for us to regroup and work together to make our University prepared and confident in embracing the new normal and emerging demands in higher education.

To achieve this, we need to realize the concept of reframing our approaches and strategies in delivering our services. Given the limitations that this emergency has brought, we need to reframe our programs and resources in order to make the most return in this trying time and in the new decade. Some of the immediate challenges we need to address in our current setting include travel restrictions, limited funds, fear of face-to-face classes and transactions, economic distress, disruption of livelihood among families, new skill and teaching modalities that need to be learned by our teachers, poor internet connectivity, health, safety, and security issues and others.

In this light, you are requested to prepare and submit a reframing proposal using the template provided. You may submit your outputs on or before August 7, 2020. You may also schedule a consultation with this Office when necessary.

Please be guided accordingly.
