Dear President Tulin,

The Annals of Tropical Research and Science and Humanities Journal of the Graduate School continue to strive for higher recognition in the scientific community internationally. As you may already have known we are working for inclusion in the Web of Science (formerly ISI) index. Among the requirements for indexing are the accessibility and ease of the submission process to the journal, and the simplicity and reliability of the peer-review process from the point of view of authors, editors and reviewers. In our search for a dependable software to help us in this regard, some editorial board members of the aforementioned journals participated in an online presentation on ScholarOne Manuscript on March 10, 2021.

ScholarOne Manuscript is a product of Clarivate which also owns the Web of Science (ISI) Indexing. It is also the most widely used program by international journals. Some universities in the country (e.g. UP Diliman, DLSU) are now using this software for their scientific journals.

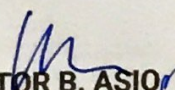

Our assessment of the software leads us to request for funding to subscribe to ScholarOne Manuscript, an AI-powered metadata extraction tool that streamlines the whole editorial process from submission thru review to publication. We recommend the yearly subscription of USD5, 287 that allows processing of 60 manuscripts for the two VSU journals.

Attached please find the proposal from Dr. Diu Seng See, ScholarOne Manuscript science account manager for government and the academe of Clarivate (Singapore), for your perusal.

We hope for your favorable consideration on this matter for this will help lift VSU's standing as the leading science university in the Visayas.

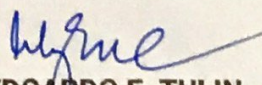

Thank you very much.

Very truly yours,
